The mother was sick in bed, the father out of work and away from home in search of it mother had not had of water for fifteen hours the minister accompanying me gave it to her. Her two children were so young that they could not help her, and no one walked the deserted street she lives on to hear her cries for water. I know families that have only had six live on for the past four days. These are facts that cannot be disputed. The dogs and cats prowl the streets starving. There is little food for the people and none for the animals. A hundred instances like the above can be testified to over the signatures of the five ministers now here if the public desires it. It is understood that through The Constitution The New York World has been aroused to the situation and will help Brunswick at that end of the line. HARRY SCHLESSINGER RAISES $370. He Used the Wires and His Friends Gave

Mr. Harry Schlesinger, the blithe and happy gentleman who manufactures candy and crackers on Alabama street, was among the hundreds who read The Constitution's story of the want existing in Brunswick yesterday morning.

The statements and appears of the devoted ministers of the stricken city opened his eyes. He was astonished that the sit-uation was so bad, and the impulse to do something for relief came to him as he

He read the article at his breakfast taand hurried to his place of business, still thinking of the terrible coadition of the stricken town. The first thing he did upon reaching his store room was to give an order to his shipping cle & for twenty-five boxes of crackers to be shipped to Brunswick. He then sent the following telegram to the Langdon bakery, of Cincin-

Terrible suffering in Braswick. Will send twenty-five boxes of crackers in your name and mine. Shall I charge you with half. Answer quick."

Two hours later he received a reply in the affirmative and the crackers went to the infected city on the morning freight.

The ready response from the Langdon bakery put Mr. Schlesinger to thinking, and the thought occurred to him that he might extend the work on the same line. If the Langing Bakery Company would readily agree share the expense of serding a confining to Brunswick, why would not forty other firms with whom be did business do the same?

Acting on this idea, Mr. Schlesinger called on Captain Evan P. Howeil and Mr. W. A. Hemphill at The Constitution office. He laid his plan before them and they most enthusiastically endorsed it, and urged him to carry it through. The latter gentlemen had interested chemselves dur ing the day in the matter of getting up subscriptions and the suggestion of Mr. Schlesinger struck them forcibly.

Messrs. Howell and Hemphill accompa nied Mr. Schlesinger to the office of Manager Sims, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, where again the plan was unfolded. Manager Sims was told that Mr. Schlesinger wanted to telegraph to about forty of the firms with which he had been doing business, and as it was in the interest of charity, the messages might be allowed to go free of charge. Mr. Sims readily offered the free use of his wires for the project, and in a few minutes Mr. Schlesinger was firing messages over the

VOORHEES DOZES IN HIS CHAIR The Test Goes Hard with the Old Uncon-

Wake Up Every Half Hour. Washington, October 11 .- (Special.)-The word has been given and the great sena torial wrestling match is in progress. The physical endurance test is on. The an uncement has been made by Mr. Voorhees that he is going to sit it out. His opponents have promised to stay with him until the lower regions freeze over. Thus the fight promises to last through the night, but no one expects results. It is nothing more than a farce, but Mr. Cleveland insisted upon it, and in deference to his wishes, the enate is being forced to make a spectacle of itself to the country.

Last night it looked like the matter had been settled. The compromise I wired The Constitution had been practically agreed upon. Everybody, including the president realized that compromise was the only solution. But the president slept over th matter and insisted this morning that Mr. Voorhees should make the test of physical endurance and attempt to force a vote on unconditional repeal. He did this because the senators who have been accused of treachery by The New York World and other papers supposed to photograph the views of Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle, declined to propose the compromise. They wanted it to come from the recognized ad ministration senators. But Mr. refused to have it that way and in conse quence the struggle which must eventually esult in the very compromise I have outlined is in progress. The Other Organ Gives It Up. Even The New York World, the paper which has represented the administration throughout the fight, admits it this morning. It has been holding all along that unconditional repeal would pass until this morning. Yesterday C. H. Jones, formerly of The St. Louis Republic, but now the big chief of The New York World, came over and conferred with Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle. This morning he had in The World a two-column double leaded signed article acknowledging that unconditional repeal is a dead issue. He declares it is due to treachery on the part of the senators who claimed friendship to the cause, and adds that the alleged repealers have all the time been marching under the white flag. He says Voorhees, McPherson, Gray, Mills, Lindsey and Smith are the only repealers who have been steadfast and honest in the cause. He adds that the president is opposed to a compromise, but it is plain that the senate is going to force apromise on him. He declares, however, that the administration will not offer but says, of course, Mr. Cleveland will be forced to sign it.

As Outlined Last Night.

Then he outlines the compromise which has been proposed to the president and senate and which it is believed will be adopted. It is identically the same as was outlined chase and coinage of silver up to a limit of $800,000,000 and authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds to prevent World adds that this is a surrender, but admits that it will probably be the result. Of course, the physical endurance test now on is a ridiculous performance, as everybody knows it cannot result in the passage of the repeal bill, but Mr. Cleveland wanted it and the democratic senators are allowing him to have his own way bout it. The danger, the leaders fear that it may create bad feeling and cause breach which will be hard to heal. It may make it very difficult to agree upon a com

The actual physical endurance contest commenced at 6 o'clock this afternoon. Fifteen minutes before that time the senate chamber exhibited signs of life. It had been dull all day. Senator Cockre'l had had the floor up to 4 o'clock, and Senator Allen then took it.

At five minutes of 6, Senator Colquitt was rolled into the chamber in his chair. He is always present when his voice is needed. Senator Gordon came in late, He had just arrived from Georgia.

At 6 o'clock sharp Senator Dubois, the nervy young man from Idaho, interrupted Senator Allen. He asked if Mr. hees would move to adjourn. Mr. Voorhees replied that he would not and ask that the senate remain in session until the bill was disposed of.

Not to Be Run Over.

Mr. Dubois then made an explanation of the attitude of the silver men. He said a majority of the senate was opposed to unconditional repeal. They wanted a fair compromise, but if the issue was forced they would vote for unconditional repeal. Then he announced that there were thirty eight senators in the chamber who would never allow this bill forced on them. Speaking to Senator Voorhees, he said no one knew better than the senator from Indiana that he must fail. With existing condiions, he said, no radical measure could be forced through the senate. Certainly this could not. He said the matter could be settled by a compromise and asked that it should be done

Then Mr. Voorhees spoke eloquently explaining his attitude and declared he would never yield to the dictation of a majority.

Senator Harris, of Tennessee, took the floor and announced that the senator from Indiana should never force a veto. The senators opposing the measure would stay with him indefinitely, but when he would say compromise the matter could soon be settled. Unless it be by compromise it should never be settled. At this stage Senator Butler, of South Carolina, entered the arena. Speaker Crisp Looks On. The galleries by this time were packed and the chamber full. Speaker Crisp and several scores of representatives were on the floor. Senator Butler eloquently and firmly declared that the senators who represented the great mass of people of the country, though they might be in the mil-over. They would meet their friends half way but would never make a total surren-der. Then he appealed to Mr. Voorhees, in whose hands the entire matter rested, to be magnanimous, to settle the matter by throwing himself in the breach and agreeing to compromise on a fair basis. Otherwise it would never be settled.

Then Senator Delph, of Oregon, announce ed that he was for repeal but this test of physical endurance was a farce and he did not intend to remain in the senate and be party to it. With these announcements over, Senator Allen again took the floor, and the actual sitting out spectacle com

Voorhees Nods.

2:20 a. m.-A quorum is still present, but the galleries have thinned out. There are not more than 200 spectators, exclusive of the newspaper men. Senator Voorliees retains his seat, but he is completely over-come and he is erect in his chair with his head hanging over on his left shoulder sound asleep, dreaming perhaps of happier places than the senate is to him right now. Senator Morgan and Senator Harris are moving about on the floor apparently enjoying the situation. They are as determined as when the contest opened last evening. Old Senator Palmer, of Illinois, looks as fatigued as Senator Voorhees, but he remains. Numbers of senators have been slipping out to committee rooms to sleep, but the silver men on guard will not permit that.

Get Up and Vote. They are determined that the senators who have forced this physical endurance test shall have the full benefit of it. Every time the senate appears thin the silver mer announce that no quorum is present. The coll is called and the sleepers must get up and report in the chamber. Fifty-four senators have just answered to their names but half of them are a sleepy-looking set. Senator Voorhees has just been waked to answer to his name, and he has retired to a rear lounge for a nap, but the silver men will not allow him a long rest. They are having the roll called every half hour, and this test of physical endurance is no longer a joke. It is getting to be a very serious matter to the aged senators. Senator Allen is still talking. He is a physical giant though he has had the floor ten and a half hours he seems good for several more. He has the staying powers of the Nebraska

As Fresh as a Dalsy at 2 s. m.

At 2 o'clock this morning the senate is still in session. A quorum is present. Mr Allen, of Nebraska, is still speaking. He has had the floor since 4 o'clock last evening. He has consumed numerous cups of offee and is apparently as fresh as when he started: The indications are that the sion will hold through the night, but in time it must be broken by the disappearance

That will settle the contest. Then compromise will have to be put through or the senate will go back to the regular sessions and continue the debate. No practi-cal compromise efforts are being made tonight. The idea is to do nothing upon that line until it becomes apparent to some of the wooden-headed statesmen that the proceedings being indulged in at present are absurd.

In discussing the situation as it exists at present a southern anti-rep. al senator has just staid to me: "Nothing on the line of a compromise will be done tonight and, in view of the strained relations which exist at present, I fear it will be decidedly difficult to get together at all. The only way to do it is to prepare a compromis measure and get the signatures of ever senator to insure its passage. As you know we southern senators do not look with favor upon the bond proposition in the proposed compromise and we think that might be left out. It should come later in a separy. It may be that a measure will be prepared tomorrow and submitted to the individual senators as a compromise. It will simply provide for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law and substitute in its place a provision for the coinage of the seignorage in the treasury and for the purchase and coinag of 2,000,000 ounces of silver monthly until the total shall reach $800,000,000 We believe this sort of a compre out any bond provisions in it could be adopt er, thereby settling this contest. The bond issue proposition could be made later after the disposition of the Sherman law. Then congress could deal with it separately. We see no use in building a compromise with a provision which many senators oppose bitterly. If we can get the signatures of a majority of senators to this tomorrow, we wik launch it. We may succeed and we may not.

Which Shall It Be? The situation resolves itself into one of two things—there must be a compromis or nothing, and every one feels that some thing must be done. The various interests involved complicate matters. A comproinvolved complicate matters. A compro-mise would leave senators who have here-tofore been silver men but who have flopped at the dictation of the administration high and dry. It would make them ridiculous spectacles in the eyes of their own people. It would place them in the attitude of hav-ing done the bidding of the administration and then described by the power that model. must accept defeat or else there can be no

FAILED TO MAKE THE RACE. The Wind Was Too Light, but the Vigilant Would Have Won.

New York, October 111.—What gave promise of being the final race in the international series for America's cup turned out to be no race at all. It was the fourth contest between the Vigilant and the Val kyrie, and, like the first, was not finished within the time limit, and, therefore, was counted out. The flotilla that followed the yachts down the bay returned long after sunset leaving the racers to fight it out in the darkness.

The result of that fight the thousands of excursionists cared nothing about, for they had made up their minds hours before in the first place that there would be no race and second that the Vigilant would win it if there was. Not Enough Wind.

Lack of wind was the cause of the trouble. At noon it seemed as though the contest would have to be postponed. The disappointment was greater because in the early day there was a nice breeze blow-ing. Yachtsmen and landsmen looked ing. Yachtsmen and landsmen looked knowingly at each other as the steamers speeded down the bay and extended congratulations all around that the conditions for an exciting trial of skill looked so promising, but as the hour for the start approached the wind died out almost entirely. The Valkyrie drifted slowly about, circling around the flagship May with the Vicilant. The Valkyrie drifted slowly about, cirching around the flagship May, with the Vigilant in tow of her tender following closely in her wake. There was hardly a hatfull of wind, although there were wind clouds in the sky. The expanse of ocean looked like a great lake without motion, save where the paddles of a big steamer or the propeller of a yacht churnel, in the water and peller of a yacht churned up the water and sent a long swell swinging under the sur-rounding boats.

'It was at most a calm, and the regatta committee could do nothing but wait before it gave the starting signal. The wait was It gave the starting signal. The wait was a long one—after the usual hour of giving the preparatory signal, 11:15 o'clock. There were certain signs that a breeze would spring up later from somewhere between the south and west, and for this a delay was caused.

The signal Given.

About 1 o'clock the committee was still prescripted as the committee was still prescripte unsatisfied as to the probable appearance of a breeze strong enough to send the yachts over the course within the stipulated six hours, and a signal was run up on the flag-ship May asking the contestants if they would assent to a postponement for the day. The Vigilant answered that she wal wilking. The Valkyrie made no response by flag and the committee felt it incumbent upon them to start the bears.

by hag and the committee felt it inclinions upon them to start the boats.

A little breeze, one of about six miles an hour, had come up from south, southwest, in the meantime, and at 1:30 o'clock the preparatory gun was fired from the flagshin. The racers were then both above the line ship.

The racers were then both above the line and at once began the usual maneuvering for the best position to be obtained at the time of the starting signal. The Valkyrie had the best of this figuring, and when, at 1:45 o clock, the starting gun was fired she crossed the line with a length of clear water between her taffrail and the end of the Vigilant's bowsprit. The American boat had pinched up hard to gain a weather position on the Briton, but was unable to do so. The cutter was well to windward to the center boarder when they crossed the line. They went over on a port tack, close hauled to begin the journey of fifteen miles dead to the windward. They had scarcely gone over, when both went about, the Valkyrie still to the windward and having gained 200 or 300 feet in the footing. Both yachts were carrying, besides their clubtop sails, the main sails, four stay sails, jibs and baby jib top sails. When they came about again they ran far over to the New Jersey shore on a port tack. The Valkyrie was the first to go about at 3:10 o'clock.

The Vigilant followed suit immediately.

As they both headed off shore it was seen that the Valkyrie was fully a half mile to the good. The Valkyrie only stood on that tack about seven minutes. The Vigilant had begun to get in its center-board work, and the Englishman knew that his opnanent tack about seven minutes. The Vigilant had begun to get in its center-board work, and the Englishman knew that his opponent would make weathering by fast, so the cutter went about to maintain her weather position. The Vigilant passed under the Valkyrie's stern half a mile away.

The Wind Increases.

The wind had increased a mile or two an hour while this was going on but two hour while this was going on, but now it dropped back to its original velocity On this tack at 3:34 o'clock the Vigilant hauled down her baby jibtop sails and ran hauled down her baby jibtop sails and ran up an intermediate. It was a long board of shore and the Vigilant was clearly outfooting the Valkyrie. She passed the cutter at leeward, and at 4:25 o'clock, thinking she could cross the Valkyrie's bow, came about and undertook to do so. Very quickly the yankee found out that she had made a mistake in that little calculation and tacked again. The Vigilant was about a sixteenth mile off from the Valkyrie's lee bow. The Valkyrie made another head to port at 4:31 o'clock, while the Vigilant held on to her starboard tack. When the Valkyrie did come about with her head off shore she was a mile away on the Vigilant came around on the port tack, this time being successful in crossing the Valkyrie's bow a good quarter of a mile away. Again the air strengthened a little and this time the Vigilant was in fortune by getting the most of it. It came from the south.

If the Act Will Not Hold Water the Jugs Will Hold More Liquor, for the Bars Will Open.

Columbia, S. C., October 11.-(Special.)

Judge Hudson has again thrown a bomb from the bench that will probably smash the dispensary law into smithereens. He is the same judge who at Darlington pro-nounced the law unconstitutional and shut up the dispensary there until it was reopened by order of Justice Pope. In the circuit court today Judge Hudson rendered a decision quashing the indictments against for a Melton, persons in this city persons in this city for sell-ing liquor. Melton & Melton, attorneys for the defense, denurred to the indictments on the ground that the act was passed in violation of the constitution of the United States and South Carolina of the United States and South Carolina and was, therefore, null and void, and that in and by said act no punishment for the offense is set forth in the indiaments. In rendering his decree Judge Hulson said that the act creating the dispensity system is unconstitutional. that the act creating the dispens ry sys-tem is unconstitutional, null and roid on the ground that the legislature of the state has no right to transfer from a citizen of the state to the government thereof the exclusive right to traffic in intoxicating liquous as a beverage; that 'it is not a legitimate exercise of police power nor does it rest upon the plea that usually supports the construction of absolutely prohibitory flaws. These notices first appeared several days ago and yesterday new notices, headed, "Fair and Last Warning," were again posted. The notices contained a solemn white-cappersoath, concluding with the startling announcement that "If your engine is fired up again we swear we will burn your gin and all other preperty."

The consequences are that the ginneries have all ceased operation and in many instances cotton is left standing in the packing screws.

Mr. Hank Wilson, of Chapel Hell, Chambers county, was in Opelika today. He says he firmly believes the white-cappers will carry out their threats, and he has closed down his own gin and will not run any more this season without the white-cappers' permission. Chambers and Randolph counties are full of unginned cotton and unless something is done great loss will occur. The gin men are frightened and a number of ginneries are not running today. The citizens claim to know just who the white-cappers are and have let them know that blood will be shed should any fires occur. The governor will be appealed to for detectives and every effort will be made to place the white-cappers behind the lars.

SENATOR COCKRELL IS QUITE SPICY

Bilverites Declare Emphatically the Voorses Bill Shall Never Pass - Still Speaking at 2:30 This Morning.

Washington, October 11 .- Mr. Cockrell, at Washington, October 11.—Mr. Cockrell, at 2:10 o'clock, yielded the floor tempofarily to Mr. Smith, democrat, of New Jersey, who addressed the senate in favor of repeal. He said he had no chance to vote on the pending bill because of an indisposition on the part of the majority to deprive the minority of what seemed to be considered its right—the right to rule. Whether the fact that the Sherman law was still on the statute book was because of the unanimity of opinion that it should be of the unanimity of opinion that it should be repealed he would leave to be answered by repealed he would leave to be answered by some one who was more familiar with the time-honored traditions of the senate than he was. (Laughter.) Mr. Smith denied that silver had any rights, neither had gold. The people had a right to use silver, but silver had no right to use the people. The outpouring of public sentiment for free colnage was the result of mass meetings held in Colorado, Nevada and Idaho, at which blood-thirsty resolutions were adopted and from which emanated threats to annihilate anybody or anything that stood between taose people and a double price for the product of their double price for the product of their

When Mr. Smith had finished Mr. Irby, populist, of South Carolina, addressed the senate in opposition to repeal. He said he spoke as a farmer, being the only member of the senate whose sole occupation was familing. He was opposed to the bill as a man and as a democrat. He believed in democratic principles as he did in the Bible.

principles as he did in the Bible. "That is pretty rough on the Bible," said republican scantor from New England.

The people of South Carolina, he said, do of Intend to be driven out of the democratic production of the self-

The people of South Carolina, he said, do not intend to be driven out of the democratic party by the president, or any of the self-constituted leaders of the democratic party. They had been honestly opposed to the nomination of Mr. Cieveland, and were now as honestly opposed to the repeal bill. The representatives of republican states had foisted upon the democratic party a nominee who did not repusent it. hat was unjust, unfair, undemocratic and irregular, and now it was faircaulty wrong for that nominee to use the republican party to pass laws that meant ruin and destruction to the poorer classes of the south and west. The people of South Carolina wanted a revision of the tariff, but they were more willing that other public questions should be relegated to the rear for a quarter of a century than to see the financial question settled as proposed by the administration.

Mr. Irby said he would not be coerced. He despised the patronage which had been so ruthlessly withheld from 100 per cent of the honest democrates of his state. If it were necessary to overpower democrates with republican votes in the senate he dared to tell democratic senators that they could not revise the tariff. This he said, not as a threat, but with reluctance and deep regret. If the democratic senators that they could not revise the tariff. This he said, not as a threat, but with reluctance and deep regret. If the democratic administration, by the aid of republican votes, overrode the wishes of South Carolina on the financial question he, for one, would not follow its lead another step. As for himself, he would not accept any compromise short of the free colnage of silver at a ratio of 18 to 1.

The joint resolution permitting the state of Wisconsin to place a statute of Pere Marquette in statuary hall of the nation capitol was taken up and passed.

Cockrell then resumed the fictor on the

for that. They will not sanction it—never."

Mr. Cockrell concluded with a reference to the president's letter to Governor Northefi.
"The president letter to Governor Northefi.
"The president was fearful of the delay, but that was not extraordinary, for but one man in public life had more unfilled predictions than Mr. Cleveland, and that was John Sherman."

At 5:15 o'clock Mr. Cockrell completed his long speech. His voice was nearly gone, and he could only shake his head in response to the inquiry of the vice president as to whether he had completed his remarks.

After some routine business Mr. Allen, populist, of Nebraska, took the floor to continue his speech. Mr. Allen was still speaking when, at 6:05 o'clock, Mr. Dubols, republican, of Idaho, rose, and Mr. Allen yielded to him. He observed that it was 6 o'clock, the hour when the senate usually adjourned. He asked the senator from Idaho, Mr. Voorliees, whether he was going to make that motion this evening. Voorbees's Reply to Dubois.

I feel it to be my highest duty," said Mr. Voorhees, "not to make that motion this evening, but on the contrary to ask the senate to stay together in continuous session until the pending measure is disposed of."

Mr. Dubois said the statement of the sensfrom Indiana meant that the senate was be held in continuous session until the pending bill was brought to a vote or until it was demonstrated that it could not be brought to a vote. He said there had been no attempt at fillbustering on the part of the pending by the was demonstrated that it could not be brought to a vote. He said there had been no attempt at fillbustering on the part of the opponents of repeal.

Mr. Voorbees replied at great length. He suggested to Mr. Dubois the wisdom of saying "let not him that girdeth on his armorboast himself as he that putteth it off." We will see, who falls in this transaction boast himself as he that putteth it off." We will see, who falls in this transaction boast himself as he that putteth it off." We will see, who falls in this transaction boast himself as he that putteth it off." We will see, who falls in this transaction boast himself as he that putteth it off." We will see who falls in this transaction boast himself as he that putteth it off." We will see who falls in this transaction boast himself as a protect of shall stand and vindicate a great and mighty principle. But before I say a word on that subject. I will ask the senator from Idaho whether he will fix a date to take a vote." Mr. Dubols said that there were distinguished as senators who had not talked on the subject, and he could not, nor could any one, any when the debute would probably close.

Mr. Voorhees started to press the question further, but apparently changed his mind and said: "Without pressing the senator from Idaho I understand the situation perfectly well. There will be ho day named. If there could be a day named by the opponents of this bill we would come to an understanding directly. It is because obstruction is resorted to, pure simple, against legislation that we are the attitude we are now. We regret exceedingly to have to resort to the methods now before us."

Mr. Hoar observed that continuous sessions were not an innovation, recalling the fact that the Biand-Arison will was passed about 5 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Voorhees said this episode in the history of the senate would result for it has referred by which to conclude discussion, he would vote for some measure by which to conclude discussion and reach a work, higher, more r body has to rule; somebody has to control this government. Shall it be the minority or the majority?" The seamtor from Idaho signified that possibly they had a majority.

"Then let os ascertain by vote, and we will submit to it gadly, willingly, if we are the minority. With you? No. Then the question comes whether we have a government at all or not. The question comes whether the destination of the mession comes whether the destination of the question comes whether the present of the property of the prope minority. Will you? No. Then the question comes whether we have a government at all or not. The question comes whether the senate can be governed at all. I stand here dought not taking compromise. A great deal has been said about compromise in the last week. I have not shored in it. There is a mighty principle involved in this and I am going to the end. If I go down I will go down with my flag nalled to the masthead. If a compromise is to take place on the principle that the minority has the right to dictare, it will be by others, not by me—not in the slightest."

chie char the minority has the right to dictate, it will be by others, not by me—not in the slightest."

Mr. Voorhees said it had been suggested to him frequently by letter and in the press to go outside of the rules and appeal to the pression outside of the rules and appeal to the pression of the senate to sustain him in mortion not provided for in the rules to proceed to a vote. "I would as soon," said he, "think of committing open high treason, or private murder as to commit such a crime."

"I know I voice the sentiment of several senators on this side, who, like myself," said Mr. Harris, "will never vote for unconditional repeal and who, with myself, would gladly meet upon any reasonable compromise ground. But if we cannot do that, you to Mr. Voorhees) will not be annoyed by any motion for adjournment. We will stay with you (Laughter.) I am not quite as young as I was forty years ago, but I will stay here and answer the roll call." (Laughter.)

Mr. Butter, of South Carolina, said Mr. Voorhees had gone one step beyond the issue when he said the question now confronting the senate was whether the government should stop; whether the senate was capable of self-government. "Is this country to be impressed with the conviction that because the repeal bill cannot pass the senate," asked Mr. Butler, "there is a revolution in the country and that the senate cannot govern itself? I submit, in common fairness to those who are opposing it, that that conclusion is neither lexitimate, logical nor fair. This bid is not the plvot upon which the government hangs. This is not the crucial test of republican in stitutions. But the edict has gone forth; the ukase has gone forth; the imperial edict has been given to the vond that this measor must pass; the country's government must stop until it does pass, and we must parhaps obey. For one, I will not obey; for one, I will not obey as lerg as I have the power under the constitution to express my disobedience."

Mr. Butler referred to the bill to rebeal the federal election laws, under the constitution to express my disobedience."

Mr. Butler relevant to the bill to reneal the federal election laws, and asked why action was not taken on that. He closed his speech with an appeal for a compromise.

Mr. Dolph, of Oregon, read from The Congressional Record extracts from the debate on the federal election bill some years ago, to show that those on the democratic side had not always been willing for the majority to rule. The majority did not prevail on that occasion. But in that debate, certain democratic senators were in a committee room eating lunch, and a response to the sergeantatarns, who had been directed to request the attendance of the senators, stated that they would come when they had concluded their meal.

the attendance of the senant they had concluded they would come when they had concluded their meal.

"Did the senator read that to help the sentor from Indiana?" asked Mr. Gray, of Iowa.

"I will stay as long as the senator from Indiana desires." replied Mr. Dolph. "But if it is demonstrated that there is no way to compel the attendance of senators to a quorum. I am going home. I am not going to take part ha a farce, as every attempt to sit out opposition to a bill since Leame into the senate ten years ago, less provien a farce."

IN THE HOUSE. Geary, of California, Explains the Feeling

Against the Chinese.

Washingtod, October 11.—The house today began the consideration of the McCreary bill to extend the provisions of the Geary act for its knowledge as a pacific second control of the six months, under a special order providing that it shall be considered until disposed of. Only two speeches were made-by Mr. Mc-Greary, chairman of the foreign affairs com-mittee, in support, and Mr. Geary, the author of the old law, in antagon.sm. Both speakers were accorded marked attention. The speech of Mr. Geary was really a briliant effort, ele-iting frequent applause. His violent attack on the officers of the administration, and especially upon General Olney, for failure to enforce the Geary law, and his charge that the original Everett bill contained the un-mistakable earmarks of Mongolian diplomacy, reated something of a sensation.

Ceary's Attack on the Administration.

At the afternoon session Mr. Geary was granted leave to address the house without limit. He began with an indignant denial of the reflections made upon Pacine coast peope in their war on the Uninese. The negroes were not expended, the Jews were not driven out, the Hugenots were not forced from their were not expected, the Jews were not driven out, the Hugenots were not forced from their home because they had refused to obey the laws of the country. In which they resided. The chairman of the foreign affairs committee was no more humane than he; no more Caristian than he. "While I do not beigee the Chinese are entitled to any new rights," said he, "if I believed this bill would give us a settlement of this question—give us the conporting he, "if I believed this bill would give us a settlement of this question—give us the opportunity to regulate their stay here and prevent more from coming—I would vote for it. I am against it, because I believe it only temportzes with the situation. He went on to speak of the adverse criticism of the bill that bore his name. He spoke of the resolutions adopted by different religious bodies—all, strange to say, in the same parascology—demanding the immediate repeat of the Geary law. What right, he asked, has any church to ask congress to do anything? The surplus earnings of the Chinese, when they had carearnings of the Chinese, which they had carried back to China, mounted to the enormous sum of $500,000,000. "Do you wonder why we don't like Chinese in Cal.forn.a?" he asked. "If in any one of your eastern states you should see thousands of abovers sapping from your wealth $50 a day in surplus caro.ngs, would you not want to get rid of them? They are an army of leeches—not an army of laborers."

"Haven't they given value received?" asked Mr. Baker, of New Hampshire. He believed in protecting the Amer.can laborer against the pauper laborer, as well as the product of the pauper laborer. (Applause.)

Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, interrupting—That's pretty good republican doctrine.

"If my party did not bedieve in that doctrine," replied Mr. Geary, "then I will quit it, but I think it does."

"Why don't you extend the Emit," asked Mr. Baker, "so as to include other foreigners besides the Chinese?"

"I have a bill it, this have a naw," replied

"Why don't you extend the limit, asked tt. Baker, "so as to include other foreigners esides the Chinese?"
"I have a bill in this house, now," replied fr. Geary, "to prevent limitigration. Will bu vote for it as I will?" (Applause.) Mr. Baker—I believe in rev.sing our treaties

Mr. Baker—I believe in rev.sing our treaties first.

Mr. Geary (contemptionsly)—Some people seem to believe we have not got our growth yet; that before legislation we must consult the wishes of foreign countries. (Applause.)

Mr. Baker—We are not too old to be honest. Proceeding, Mr. Geary insisted that photographs afforded the only sure means of identification. Mr. Geary denied that it would require $7,000,000 to enforce the Geary law. If the officers of the administration had done their duty on May 5th; the present condition would not have been presented and there would have been no occasion for the extension.

would have been no occasion for the extension.

In reply to a question by Mr. McCreary as to whether the $25,000 appropriation would have been sufficient, Mr. Geary declared that the Chinese would take no risk of being sent back to China. Rather than do that they would voluntarily have left our borders. The $25,000,000 (Applause.)

He denounced the administration for violation of party faith and party platform and aithough he loved the party, it was his duty to condemn the democratic officers who had betrayed their trust. If they had violated the law they must go down. He had no fault to find with the treasury department, but the action of the attorney general in defying the law could not be defended. It had made it the duty of the democrats to denounce and condemn him. He called attention to a statement in a morning paper to the effect that the

"Could we not modify any laws bearing on a foreign power, the tariif laws for instance, without securing the consent of the foreign ministers?" He intimated that the Chinese minister had had a hand in the preparation of the Everett bill, of which the McCreary bill was a modification.

The house, at 5 o'clock, adjourned.

The Second Day's Session of the Rate Committee Here.

LUMBER RATES TO COME UP TODAY

Rate Clerks Get Their Heads Together Over Some Tedious Figures-The One Cent Rate to the Fair Sure to Come.

mittee of the Southern Railway and Steam-ship Association brought a lot of hard work but of little interest to the outside world. it being for the most part, mere routine work. All the various subcommittees to consider the nestions placed in their hands were at work until a late hour last night and will report this morning what they have seen wise to suggest. None of the big questions have been reached yet, such as the lumber rates, the cotton rates

These are apt to come before the committee for final adjustment this morning. The lumber question is perhaps the greatest of them all, so far as the interest in the meeting and as issues goes. There are several leading lumber men of south Georgia already here to appear before the committee when this question arises and he committee to restore them he rates they had a year ago. It is remembered that the scale of rates was zonewhat the marking of the committee

It is probable that the committee will give them all attention such an issue deserves, and that the lumber men will receive such recognition from the rate tixers as they deem safe to give in the matter of handling freights; but it is understood that the preser rates, while they may be altered a little, will be pretty much the same in the long run after the meeting adjourns as now.

much the same in the long run after the meeting adjourns as now.

One of the interesting happenings of the session yesterday was the appeal made by representatives of Atlanta's Chamber of Commerce to the committee to give Atlanta better rates on freight from distant markets. Judge James Anderson, city attorney, Mr. Frank P. Rice, Mr. Meador and Mr. Phil Harralson went be fore the committee and urged that some lower rate be allowed Atlanta so that this city can better afford to compete with certain other cities which seem more favored in the schedule of rates. What they wanted particularly, they said, was a carload rate, that is to say, a rate lower by the carload than by broken cars.

Each of the citizens of Atlanta, Each of the citizens of Atlanta, composing the committee made a little talk before the committee and brought a strong case for the consideration of the rate fixers. When they had finished Comissioner Stahlman made a speech congratulating the members of the At-lanta committee on the manner in which they made their appeal, and assuring them that the committee would do all in their power to meet the appeal are stated in their power to committee would do all in their power to meet the appeal in every way satisfactory to all parties concerned. The session of the rate comittee will proba-bly last several days longer, and there will be a good deal of interest to shipners and rate.

a good deal of interest to shippers and railroad men evolving out of the meeting today.

The Passenger Rate Clerks

The passenger rate clerks of the Southern Passenger Association were in session in the Equitable building yesterday. The purpose of their meeting is to fix the actual figures in compliance with the action of the Southern Passenger Association at its last meeting, agreeing upon the winter tourist rates and other cheap rates.

They will have a tabulated report when their session is over and will submit it to the railroad ticket agents for adoption in their daily business of selling tickets. Their work is simply in accordance with what has already been decided by the association. The association fixes the rate and the clerks calculate the cost of tickets between certain points according to that rate. The rate agreed upon by the association at the New York meeting for the winter tourists is about the same as last year, which was approximately 2 cents a mile each way.

Three or four days ago he came through Atlant with a party of fifty visitors to the big fair, and yesterday he brought down from points along the Richmond and Danville about thirty more. He will continue the work until the two Carolinas are depopulated if the fair least along according

Now for the One Cent Rate!

Chicago, Mil. October 11.—The 1-cent per mile rate on Chicago day to the world's fair was such a great incentive to travel, that all western, southwestern and northwestern railways have adopted the 1-cent per mile rate from now until the fair closes, tickets good until November 15th.

It is believed that this reduction will secure the 1-cent per mile rate from the gauthern roads. Cheap rates on all roads will insure the 1-cent per mile rate from the gauthern largest average attendance if the close of the world's fair

They have been hard at work on this herculean task ever since the clouds were blown away. It was an awful sweep the storm made over the line, and it has been a great effort on the part of the Louisville and Nashville to get the track clear as soon as possible. The trouble was that the track was washed away in many places and was completely covered with bover.

track was washed away in many places and was completely covered with heavy timbers in others.

With characteristic pluck and energy the Louisville and Nashville people put a large number of hands at work clearing the road bed, and by tonight will be running trains through to Biloxi.

By Friday or Saturday night, it is thought, they will be ready to resume the entire schedule from Mobile to New Orleans, and this will restore to the traveling public the straight route to the Crescent City. Since the Louisville and Nashville's line has been blocked by the work of the storm, the passengers from Atlanta to New Orleans have been compelled to go by way of Selma and Meridian.

Headed for the Forest City.

Savannah, Ga., October 11.—(Special.)—Another storm is reported moving up from the southern part of Florida, which the weather part is as severe as the cyclone of southern part of Flerida, which the weather observer says is as severe as the cyclone of August 27th. He says from all indications it is moving directly toward Savannah and thinks it will strike here, if at all, some time tomorrow morning. There is a heavy wind here tonight, similar to the forerunner of the last storm.

Annual Meeting of the Western Union. Annual Meeting of the Western Union.

New York, October 11.—The annual meeting of the Western Union Telegraph Company was held today. The report, which was a very favorable one, was well received by the large number of stockholders present. The old board of directors was elected with the exception of the following persons: Norvin Green, Jay Gondd, Fred L. Ames. Henry Wester, who died during the year, and Erastus Wyman, who declined re-election, and Sidney Shepard, who resigned in favor of his son. The places of the above named were filled by the election of John Jacob Astor, Oliver Ames, George Bilss. Louis Fitzgerald, C. Sidney Shepard and J. B. Van Every. Mr. Van Every has been for a great many years the auditor of the company and his advent to the board of directors—vill greatly please the large number of customers of that corporation.

One of the Negroes Has Confessed, Telling How They Waylaid and Killed Their Victim.

Cartersville, Ga., October 11.-(Special.)-Later developments in the murder of Simon Foster, the old negro, who was found in a well at Cassville, a few days since, where he had been since March 28th, implicate his wife and stepdaughter in the scheme that ended in his death. Simon had been mar ried only about six weeks, and his married life was not a happy one. The woman whom he married had some daughters, and these daughters had lovers. The last named were the three Irby negroes, who are now in jail here charged groes, who are now in jail here charged with Foster's murder. It seems that Foster's wife and stepdaughter conspired to rid themselves of their source of unhappiness, and they plotted with the Irbys to do the job. This was consented to, and as Foster was going from his home near Cassville to town on the night of March 28th, the Irbys waylaid him. One of them hit him with an ax, but the other, who was to finish the work, refused to do his part; so they took a rail and shoved the half dead old negro into a dry well near by.

People thought strangely of Foster's disappearance, for he was considered to be an houset old darky, but they had no reason to believe that he had been dealt with harshly, believe that he had been dealt with harshly, though some of the darkies suspected such things. About a week ago Foster's wife was picking cotton with another darky, and he said to her in a jesting way that it was a shame the way they had killed old man Simon. He at once saw that she was excited, and said no more to her, but went to Cassville and told it there. About this time one of the Irby negroes was seen to have Foster's watch, and the white people began to think that there was something wrong. A party of they decided to search all the old wells around Cassville, and in one they found a suit of clothes belonging to one of the Irbys, which he acknowledged was his. In a little while they found the body of Simon Foster in a dry well not far away. The Irbys were arrested and one of body of Simon Foster in a dry well not far away. The Irbys were arrested and one of them confessed the whole matter, implicat-ing Foster's wife and steedaughter. He said they begged him and his brothers to kill the old man, and they did so. Five are now in jail for this murder, and it is very probable that there will be about three hangings here within the next twelve months.

WAYCROSS NEWS. Ware County's Cotton Crop Is Larger This

Waycross, Ga., October 11.—(Special.)—Ware county's cotton crop this year as compared with last year's will be larger. The season has been better and the acreage was slightly increased. After talking with leading farmers on the wiphiest The Constitution can slightly increased. After talking with leading farmers on the subject The Constitution correspondent has estimated that there will be an increase of 10 per cent over last year's crop. Five per cent, it is estimated, will be put on the market by November 1st. There has been no difficulty in procuring hands to gather the cotton, and the work has been going on for several weeks. The farmers do not depend upon their cotton crop, as their principal source of income. Hence they will not find it necessary to rush their cotton on the market until the prices advance. They are, as a rule, not in debt, and their income from grain, cane, potatoes and vegetables will enable them to hold their cotton until spring, if necessary, in order to command better prices.

A Suggestion to the Merchants.

Mr. Steele, a farmer of Pierce county, is in the city today. He said that the country people are gradually bringing their trade to Waycross, and that if the trade from the country increases two or three years more at the rate it has this year. Waycross will be a large town. He said that there is one important thing neglected by the merchants. They may offer inducements in bargeins, but they offer no accommodations for farmers. He believes every enterprising merchant should erect stables and shelters and let the farmers use them free of charge. The merchant should also furnish feed for horses free to his customers. That would induce many farmers who go to small places to trade, because they can find such accommodations to come here. The country neonle will apprecicause they can find such accommodations to come here. The country people will appreci-ate the favor if the merchants take hold of the matter. The farmers are a blessing to any community. Their trade is worth striv-ing for.

Macon Is Disappointed at the Turn Affairs Are Taking, for She Had Dreamed of Annexation.

Macon, Ga., October 11 .- (Special.)-Vineville is a beautiful and prosperous subarb of Macon. It is an ideal place. Its people are cultured, refined, wealthy and hospitable. It contains many handsome houses. The population of Vineville has ncreased very much during the last five years, in a measure due to electric street ears. Vineville is the largest militia district in the state, having a population of about 4,500 souls, and a taxable valuation of property amounting to more than $2,000,of property amounting to more than $2,000. OOO. It has been a dream with many in Macon to see Vineville annexed to the city, but that anspicious time seems further away than ever, for a bill will be introduced at the next session of the legislature to incorporate Vineville as a town. This information was given out today. The main reason why Vineville desires to become a town is to obtain a system of sanitary sewers and drainage. This has become a necessity by reason of the rapidly increasing population. Vineville possesses good health now, but she cannot long retain it unless she obtains sewers. A map of Vineville has been made at a cost of $150, showing grades, elevations, etc., preparatory to building sewers. It is thought that a system of sewers like Vineville needs would cost about $110,000. The natural and inevitable course of sewers and drainage in Vineville is the Vineville branch, and this stream is also the course for the western part of the city of Macon. It is thought that Vineville and Macon might unite and share jointly in the expense of sewering the branch. It is estimated that Vineville can be sewered at a rate of taxation of less than half of 1 per cent. If Vineville obtains sewers and sanitation the saburb would never consent to annexation. The state and county have no legal right to levy a tax to sewer Vineville, and it can only be done legally by Vineville and it can only be done legally by Vineville and it can only be done legally by Vineville obtains sewers and sanitation the suburb would never consent to annexation. The Young Men's Democratic Club will meet Friday night for reorganization. A call has been issued by the executive committee and the members are now at work canvassing for new names. Much interest will be manifested in the organization, as the boys intend to play an important part in the coming municipal election. Mrs. Martha Compton, of this city, the lady after whom Athanta was named, was seen by your correspondent today. She expressed a very carnest desire to be present at the celebration of Atlanta's liftieth birthday next December, but is anxious lest her health may be in such condition as to prevent her from attending. If possible she will certainty be there.

The interview with her, published in The Constitution September 24th, has brought her letters and newspaper clippings from all sections of the union. So many letters have reached her in fact that it will be impossible for her to answer them for a long time. Many letters have reached her from publishers desirons of getting possession of her father's manuscripts, which are considered very valuable history. Others have come from kinsmen in all parts of the country, some of whom she had never heard of, asking for family history, etc. She authorized your correspondent to say to the people of Atlanta that if her health will allow she will certainly attend the celebration of Atlanta's fiftieth birthday.

What They Claim - Orders for Echoo Money Sent to a Number of Counties-Notes of the Capitol.

The insurance men of Milledgeville are after the scalp of Mr. R. N. Lamar.
Mr. Lamar is a trustee of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, and is retary and treasurer of the board. He has been a member since the board was organized, having been appointed by General Gordon when governor. He is a well-known citizen of Milledgeville. Now, it seems that as secretary and treasarer of the board, Mr. Lamar has the place ing of the insurance on the college property and-according to the charges made to the governor-in that capacity he has been placing the insurance with himself in his position of insurance agent.

The other agents who have heretofore had a slice of the business are wrathy. They have written Governor Northen in which they urge that his action warrants his removal as a trustee and they ask the governor to take such action. The governor has turned the letter over to the president of the board of trustees.

He deems it a matter belonging to the board, and it is probable that there will be an investigation. School Commissioner Bradwell and As-

The Responsibility for Delay. The whole responsibility for delay in wiping the Sherman law from the statute books rests on those who have turned a deaf ear to all suggestions of compromise. It is not the first time our history that the true interests of people have been represented by a minority, and it is not the first time that a minority has thrown itself into the breach to defeat class legislation.

That unconditional repeal is in the nature of class legislation, no one who uptands he situation can deny. The argument that it is authorized by the democratic platform is the shallowest pretense. To make this claim is to declare that the democratic platform declares in favor of the crime of demone-Hzation which was surreptitiously accomplished by John Sherman and his republican followers in 1873. Unconditional repeal means the revival and re-establishment of this act. If there were any doubt as to this, it would be dissipated by Mr. Cleveland's letter to Governor Northen, in which he says that he is not in favor of making silver a money standard until European nations are willing to give their consent.

It is worthy of note that not one of the organs of goldbuggery, not one of the patronage democrats who are so anxtous for unconditional repeal, has denied that the result of this scheme will be the revival of the demonetization act of 1873. They do not deny it because All that they an say is monetize the coined silver, and they would not say this if they had any just appreciation of the difference between a ney standard and a legal tender currency. They declare that unconditional repeal of the Sherman law will not denetize our silver coin because it will still be a legal tender. So is the greenback a legal tender, but does any one the understands this question pretend say that the legal tender quality of ne greenback makes it a money standard-makes it money of final paymentgives it the quality of final redemption?

1 repear coined silver dollars precisely the place In our currency that the greenbacks and treasury notes occupy. They will have the legal tender quality, but they will be redeemable in gold as the greenbacks are. In other words, unconditional repeal will revive the act of de etization of 1873, and the coined silver dollars will be no more of a money standard than greenbacks and treasury notes are.

We say, therefore, that the movement in farer of unconditional repeal flies nd gives the lie to the platform. is a thinly disguised attempt to comthe democratic party to enderse Sherman law of 1873. It is an ef to commit the democratic party to arreptitions endorsement of the great legislative crime that the corrupt re meaning, in plain English, of the ment in favor of unconditional re neal. For the results that republican ntors and their eastern allies are seek Ing to bring about there is not the slight est warrant in the democratic platform and if these results are accomplished the democratic party will have to answe for it to an outraged people.

The Sherman law remains on the stat ute book today because the elements that are in favor of unconditional repeal fuse to enter into a compromise. There Is little in a compromise for the moneyed erests that are unxious to fasten the an money standard on this re For that reason the compromis is halted-for that reason there has n unnecessary delay-for that reason business interests of the country are waiting for relief. Place the rebility where it belongs. It rests the administration; it rests on the ge democrats who are willing to people and cannot deceive them. The people know that the road to repeal leads through a compromise, and they are anxious to see the democrats of the senate get together on a basis that does not mean repudiation of the democratic platform. The sooner this is done the better for the people and the party.

Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, whose death may occur before these lines appear in print, deserves to rank with the greatest men of the present century.

He was the constructor of the Suez canal, the planner of the Corinth canal, recently opened, and the master spirit of the Panama canal. His marvelous engineering achievements will be of incalculable value to the commercial world for all time to come.

The genius of De Lesseps has com manded the homage of all nations, and few men in the peaceful walks of life ever won and wore so many medals and lecorations from nearly all the governments of the world.

In an evil hour De Lessens went into the Panama canal scheme, at an age when he was unable to give its details his close supervision. His subordinates mismanaged the finances of the company, deceived the shareholders and embezzled money. The old man and his son were technically guilty, and were so adjudged by the court. The son was imprisoned a few months, but the father was spared this disgrace, and his faculties were so clouded by age and disease that he never knew of the proceedings against him.

Desnite his last unfortunate venture. the great engineer will fill a brilliant page in history, and the judgment of posterity will hold him innocent of the charges brought against him. He may have been weak and trusting, but he was the soul of honor and a giant among men until the infirmities of four score and ten years wrecked his mind and body.

The Parliament of Religions.

Rev. Dr. Hoss, in Nashville Christian Advo This body which has just closed its session turned out to be something more of a humbug than even its severest critics supposed it would be. Before its opening Dr. Herrick Johnson characterized it as "an invitation by Christian men to all false faiths to come here and present and publish and scatter abroad their abominable heresies under Christian sanction, with the openly avowed object of promoting a brotherhood of religions." That such a thing should have been possible is indeed surprising. It shows a vast disintegration of faith. We fear that the effect will be most hartful to the public mind. Al-ready the talk is going around more briskly than ever before to the effect that Christianity is simply one of many religious, all of which contain some element of truth, but no one of which is absolutely true. If this be so, we might as well close our churches and retire from business. At any rate, we can no longer sincerely preach a gospel which in-sists that "there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" than the name of Josus Christ.

The heathen delegates are, of course, greatly rejoiced over the cordinity of their reception. Hereafter, unless they differ esception. Hereafter, unless they there es sentially from other men, they will feel more ather than less, contempt for the struggling Christian missionaries in their own countries. The fact that they have been made so much of in the United States cannot fail to inflate them with a new sense of their importance We deem it very likely that the Shinto high priest of Japan, who embraced and kissed three or four effusive American women in the midst of "the thunderous applause" of the great assembly, will think more highly of himself than he ought to think.

But what of "the advisory council?" The fifteen hundred or more divines of all degrees who were solemnly invited to belong to this high-sounding conclave, and who graciously repted the invitation, must now feel as pected to give any advice or to be taken into any counsel. The whole movement was in the hands of its originators. It was cut and dried from the beginning. The names of the honored gentlemen of "the advisory council" were used simply as a balt to give prestige to the scheme in the eyes of the world. As Dr. Ashmore says in The Journal and Messenger:
"It was a masterpiece of literary engineering in which our American people beat all the nations of the earth."

"I see the republicans have carried Indianapolis and I'm not surprised," was the comment of Mr. J. M. Somers, who hails from Terre Haute, and who was at the Markham a few hours yesterday. "I am not surprised, however. The principal reason for this democratic defeat is, I suppose, that new element in politics up our way—the A. P. A. That means American Protective Association, which s simply and solely a know-nothing organizaits simply and solely are the purpose of fighting the foreign element in politics. Naturally the A. P. A.s join hands with the republicans and in this election they have worked hand in in this election they have worked hand in hand with the republican ring. It is true that there has been a decided slump in democratic enthusiasm in the Hoosier state and the administration is not in very high favor; but I don't think that the main reason for the Indianapolis went democratic about defeat. Indianapolis went democratic about 1,500 last year; your dispatches this morning indicate that the rown has gone at lenst 1,500 the other way. While dissatisfaction with the administration had something to do with it, the know-nothingism of the A. P. A.s was the great factor in the result."

very beautiful and elegant wedding united A very beautiful and elegant wearing united Mr. Eugene Calloway and Miss Elizabeth John-son last evening. The ceremony was performed at the handsome mansion of the bride on Washington street and was witnessed by quite a number of friends and relatives. The rooms and corridors were brilliantly lighted and charmingly adorned in cut flowers and growing plants. The long drawing rooms on the right were thrown into one by means of foiding doors. Here a profusion of fine rases were used in the decoration, and their queenly grace harmonized with the delicate tinting and drapery. The mantels were banked with La France roses and ferns and bowls of these blushing blossoms filled many tables and niches.

Beneath this fair bower the ceremony was performed with impressive eloquence by General Evans, assisted by Dr. McDonald, and one of the many pretty sentlinents connected with the wedding was the fact that General Evans had united in marriage the bride's own parents.

The bridesmalds, who made a lovely and flower-like semi-circle about the bride, were Miss Laulle, Hammond, Bay, Miss Martha, Gay, Miss Martha, and Martha General Evans Martha. Miss Laule Hammond Ray, Miss Martha Brown, Miss Mary Pattillo, Miss Marion Hill-yer, Miss Laura Adair and Miss Mary Callo-

The groomsmen were Mr. Wilmer Moore, Judge Ernest Kontz, Mr. Gordon Kiser, Mr. Lewis Rawson and Mr. Frank Meador. The bride was preceded by her little brother, Master Marshall Johnson, dressed as a lovely little page in white knickerbockers, silk stockings and white silk blouse, and holding proudly upon his arm his little cousin, Elizabeth Rawson, a beautiful blonde child, who looked like rich silk with big puffed sleeves and a deep bertha of lace. She carried a very big bou-quet of white carnations, like all the older bridesmaids.

The bride entered with her maid of honor Miss Carrie Johnson, and the groom was ac-companied by his best man, Mr. McKleroy, of Miss Johnson was an ideal bride in her modest loveliness and grace. Her gown, in its simplicity and refinement, was a fair setting for her petite figure and charming face. The material was a very rich white corded silk, the skirt made perfectly simple and the bodice had big puffed sleeves and a deep bertha of exquisite duchesse lace finishing the round cut neck, this lace being caught in front by a spray of orange blossoms, and these bridal flowers formed a spray that confined the veil to her dark tresses. One room was set apart for the entertain ment of the bride and groom and their young unmarried friends. The bride's table in the center was a most artistic creation in design and arrangement. A great bowl of white cakes, cut glass ornaments and white grapes buffets and mantels showed vases and bowls of the same pure blossoms.

Another large apartment, adorned with many bright flowers and arranged with small tables, was used for the other guests.

The wedding was not a large one on account of recent mourning, but it was certainly one of the most beautiful known to Atlanta society. Many elegant presents were received.

At 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Calloway donned their traveling costumes and departed for their wedding journey to Chicago and New York, followed by a shower of rice, the neces-sary old slipper and all the congratulations and good wishes that a multitude of loving hearts could render.

Miss Elizabeth Johnson is the eldest daughter of Mr. Henry Johnson, a member of the firm of Chamberlin, Johnson & Co., and one of the wealthlest and most highly respected of the wealthiest and most highly respected gentlemen in the city. Her mother was Miss Rawson, a name associated with refinement and wealth. With everything to make the life of this young girl bright and beautiful she grew to the flower of perfect young womanhood. Scarcely out of her teens she retains that sweet innocence and sincerity which so often are lost long before a girl is grown. Her nature is lovely in its kindness. grown. Dalton. Ga.. October 11.—(Special.)—The marriage of Mr. Frank M. Pennington and Miss Nina Kenner-took place last evening at the Presbyterian church. Hev. M. A. Matthews officiating. The occasion was one of beauty and happiness and will linger a lifetime in the minds of those present. The bridal party entered the church as the vedding north was exquisitely played by Mrs. Gertrade Manly Jones. First came Miss Joste Barrett and Miss Nettle Fapusworth; then Miss Mayrie O. Neol and Miss Louise Smith, of Chattanooga, then the two little flower girls, Lilian Grubb, of Chattanooga, and Inez Kenner. The bride entered leaning on the arm of her maid of honor, Miss Sallie Walker, of Rome, and the groom on the arm of his best man, Mr. Pattey, of Winchester, Tenn. The ceremony was beautiful and the prayer offered most tender and touching. After the ceremony a reception was given at the residence of Mr. J. H. PATTI ROSA AS MISS DIXIE.

A big house gave Patti Rosa and her excelent company a hearty reception at the Grand last night. For several years, now, Patti has been a very great favorite here in Atlanta and the audience that greeted her last night showed that her hold upon the people is as strong as ever.

The play was "Miss Mixie," a dainty child of the pen of Mr. Charles W. Vincent, which gives the star and her company ample opportunity for the display of their talents. It portunity for the display of their thems. It is very much like all other plays of its kind, but in an entertainment of this nature the play serves simply as the vehicle and the success of the show depends upon the cleverness of the people. In this respect "Miss Dixle" is fortunate, for it is certainly in excellent hands.

The showning little star needs no introduc-

The charming little star needs no introduction. There is little to say that has not been said again and again, and all the good things that have been said of her before are equally true now. She was given the heartiest kind of a reception last night, and she deserved it

Two splendid comedians are the leading personages in her support, and both are favorites in Atlanta. They are John D. Gibert and Joe Cawthorn. The specialties which these gentlemen introduced formed prominent features in the evening's entertainment. Gilbert was excessively funny in the grotesque role of the professor, while Joe Cawthorn as the of the professor, while Joe Cawthorn as the German was especially pleasing in the musical numbers he introduced. He is an artist on the accordion and his simple German dialect is catching. The other members of the company are good—Mr. Dunne, Mr. Darcey, Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Stevens; Miss Gates, Miss Deane and Miss Jacobs.

ny will present "Dolly Varden."

"The Dazzle" Tomorrow.

This is the fourth year of this most excellent comedy and each season its success has been more pronounced. The piece has received a complete overhauling and it is today brighter, better and funnier than ever. Joe Ott and his famous "Only One" song have been retained, while the part of Kitty Starlight has been placed in the hands of Miss Annie Lewis, a charming little soubrette, who nequired both fame and fortune as a star in "Yon Yonson" and "A Nutmeg Match." During the last three years, by her elever work, she has won her way to the head of the list of farceurs. In her are combined beauty, clid, and personal magnetism to such a degree that she pleases her audiences at the very start and becomes a prime favorite before the fall of the curtain.

A BAD SOLDIER.

He Runs Away with a Better Looking

Woman.
Up to last Tuesday Private E. E. Nietzel was in the service of Uncle Sam at McPherson barracks, and was counted the best soldier and handsomest man in his company. He had served several enlistments and was a man of about forty, tall, stalwart and erect. His hair was prematurely gray, but his mousache black as a coal, and twisted at each end to a military point. In brief he was the beau ideal of a trooper.

Fourteen years ago Nietzel was married in New York and since then his wife has faithfully followed him as he was moved from post to

New York and since then his wife has faithfully followed him as he was moved from post to post in the routine of army life. They owned some little property between them, and lived in better fashion than was usual for men in the service. Since Nietzel has been at the barracks here he and his wife have occupied a little cottage just outside the quarters.

Of late Nietzel has been frequently away from home and his wife now remembers that when he went off duty he was always particular to dress himself up in his best clothes and put an extra twist on his moustache. He had good excuses ready for his absence and the wife suspected nothing.

On Thesday night he did not come home, and in the morning Mrs. Nietzel, greatly worried, went over to the barracks to see what was the matter. She learned to her surprise that emissioned had earlied the day before, and that he had drawn $180 back pay and left. When she returned home she discovered that some one had entered the house and stolen her gold watch and chain and a quantity of wearing apparel. Suspecting that he husband was at the bottom of the burgary she came to the city and called at the Atlanta National bank, where she kept a small deposit. She learned there that Nietzel had been before her and had drawn out the entire balance. some $280. She then reported the case to the police.

Some friends of the departed soldier throw considerable light on the matter. They have seen him repeatedly of late, it seems, in company with a good looking young woman with hair of pretty hue. Nobody knows who she is, but she has been seen recently meeting Nietzel at the outskirts of the barracks and since he left she also has disappeared. It is reasonably certain that they have levanted together. Telegrams have been seen to New York to head off the bad soldier and the red headed girl in case they take that direction.

Good Story About in Horse That Dis-

Here is a curious story and a good one that will interest lovers of animals. On Saturday last Mr. W. G. Brown found that his valuable driving horse had disappeared from valuable driving horse had disappeared from the stable in the rear of his residence on Peachtree street. He searched everywhere for the animal but failed to find a frace of h and concluded that horse brieves had been about. As the horse was not only valuable but one that the family was much attached to, he was greatly worlded ever its loss.

Three days passed and nothing was heard of the herse when on Tuesday morning Mr. Brown was in his back yard and heard a peculiar no se in the color of the adjoining house, which is unoccupied. He opened the color door to investigate and out wailed the missing mag. It had evidently entered the color during the high and some one cossing the door, had been made a prisoner. The animal was given a heartly welcome home again and did not seem to be any the worse for its iong solour without food or water.

BADGES TO BE WORN

In Celebrating the Birthday of a Great and Growing City.

IT WILL BE A GENERAL HOLIDAY

Business of Every Kind Will Be Suspended-A Magnificent Display of Fireworks at Night.

No movement was ever started in Atlanta with such a unanimity of feeling than the proposition of the Pioneer Society to celebrate her semi-centennial.

Everybody in Atlanta is in full sympathy with the movement, and all who have been approached on the subject have responded with enthusiasm. The 20th day of next December will wit the largest crowd of visitors and grandest demonstration ever seen in this part of the world. A special committee, selected from the Pioneer Society and from the leading business men of the city, has been appointed to negotiate with all of the railroads leading into the city for the purpose of securing their co-operation.

The disposition of the railroads to act in the matter has already been foreshadowed by the expressions of railroad men who view the approaching anniversary with favor. It is warmly endorsed by every onelebration. With the favor of the railroads secured would be a matter of no small difficulty to bring to the city as many as a hundred thousand people from all parts of the coun try.

who has read the general outline of the Atlanta's Birthday Party. Everybody will be glad of an opportunity to come to Atlanta on that occasion.

It will be at the close of the year, and during the Christmas holidays, when all of the business of the year has been completed. The fact that Atlanta is going to celebrate her fiftieth birthday will be as strong a magnet as the city ever used to draw the surrounding country into her gates. And the manner in which the day is to be celebrated will be such as to entertain every one who comes to the city.

In the morning a procession of floats, representing the growth of the city since 1843, will be organized to be closely followed by the children of the public schools. the military and fire companies, together with all of the secret brotherhoods and social organizations in the city. The procession will also include the mayor and council, the governor and his staff, and other dignitaries of the state and nation who will be present on that occasion.

At the state capitol, beginning at 10 o'clock, a number of short addresses will be delivered. These will have a bearing upon Atlanta's growth and each of the speakers will be Assigned a different subject.

Hon. Jonathan Norcross, who came to Atlanta in 1844 as one of the first pioneer citizens, will make a short speech provided his health at that time will admit of

The other speakers will be Hon. Evan P. Howell, Judge George Hillyer, Judge Howard Van Epps, Hon. J. F. O'Nelll, Judge Logan E. Bleckley, Hon. Sam Small, Hon. Hoke Smith and others.

It is intended to make the day a local holiday, and to this end every merchant in the city will be asked to close his doors and participate in the celebration,

A semi-centennial occurs but twice in a hundred years, and the man who refuses business for a single day bonor of such an event has very little public spirit: nd hardly deserves to succeed.

It was first intended to hold the celebration on the 23d day of December-the exact date of the anniversary-but as that was so near Christmas it was thought the mer chants would be too busy to take a hand in the demonstration. As it is there is no reason why every merchant in the city should not close his hoors and have his business represented in the procession.

Harry Yeandle and W. K. Speer, of Atlanta, were the other entries. The white-haired Birmingham youth verified the predictions and won in a hot finish, with Dent second; time, 1:24.

They came spinning past the grand stand, every nerve strained for the final dash. Guyol and Caperton still lead. Piggott is an Englishman. He is slim and of medium length. He was not built for air athlete. He has a modest face and a slight sandy mustache. His hair is of an extreme light color. Always he could be distinguished from the others by his white head. People in the grand stand now noticed that the white head was still lagging behind.

Like a tlash the men were past the grand stand. As if in an instant, unperceived, a new man had taken free lead. From the extreme rear a slim rider, thrown forward on the handles of his wheel, had shot to the front, and had spurted many feet ahead of the others.

It was Piggott's white head and he was leading like a demon. Round the back stretch the men flew like the wind. Piggott dropped back, the others pushing to the front again. The friends of the Englishman were in dismay. He had made his spurt too soon, they said.

The racers turned into the home stretch as if pursued by the devil himself. Piggott was bunched with the others. Caperton appeared to be leading. The crowd yelled wildly as the men swoop down past the grand stand.

His head bobbing up and down like a cork on the water, Piggott has spurted forward again. His feet are working like machinery. Caperton is beside him. Slowly the breach widens, There is a mighty shout—Piggott had won by a second.

Caperton made a great race. Piggott, who is regarded as one of the best riders in the south, had a handicap of 310 yards, but he proved himself a rider of remarkable plack.

last night's quotations. Spot sales were 10,000 bales. On this our market advanced on the first call some 15 points, considerable cotton being bought for outside account. Realizing sales led to a reaction of about 7 points, but by I o'clock prices had recovered and were a point or two above the opening. The government report is almost forgotten, but a more thorough diges-tion of it today rather develops the opinion that it is to be bullishly rather than bearlahly construed. Mr. Pasch, of Havre, the continental authority, telegraphs Pasch, of Havre, the continental authority, telegraphs that the indicated crop, according to the acceage and on the indicated continton, is 5,27,000 bales. Taking the bureau condition on the acreage, as estimated by The Financisi Chronicle, the indicated crop would be over 6,700,600 bales. Allowing a considerable margin for error in favor of a larger production on either estimate the prospective supply does not promise to be excessive. The controlling influence in the market for the next week or two will, however, unquestionably be receipts. Those for today are not excessive deliveries nt all. It seems unlikely that the total movement for the week will exceed 20,050 bales. The interior movement, as made up by the New Orieans exchange, indicates that receipts will be 72,000 bales against 80,000 bales last year, while the shipments are estimated at 67,000 bales, against 50,000 tales last year. These figures would point to a small port movement again next NEW YORK, October 11.—The fact that to day was, to a certain extent, the beginning of the end of the debate between the sliver and anti-sliver forces in the senate, had more than a little to do with the speculative forces on stocks. In certain cliques the continuous caston acceptant was regarded as of doubt on stocks. In certain cliques the continuous of the continuous session experiment was regarded as of dul efficacy, and this feeling was reflects a selling movement, which brought out siderable long stock, and the bears were ready to take advantage of the situation make a drive all along the line. London in the market, too, as a seller, but not to very large extent, though sufficient to ad the depressing influences. The Septet ures would point to a small port movement again next A rumor has been current today that Mr. Neill would shortly issue a crop estimate. It is expected that his figures will be large, but the rumor is denied. Colder weather is indicated for Texas tonight. NEW YORK, October 11-The New Orleans semiweekly movement at twelve of the largest weekly re-ported points shows receipts to last night 67,200 bales, against 76,000 last year, while stocks are 113,900 bales, against 100,000. This shows no pressure of stocks, and unless the movement grows larger we think Liverpool is in no condition to take any chances so far as any delay in buying for their immediate necessities is conconcerned. If the demand there is as large, present and prospective, as our most reliable information indicates, which is to the effect that trade is the largest since the American war, and that weavers are sold ahead to next summer, then the thing most to be dreaded by the English spinners is, that by a repeal of the Sherman law the American spinner would be actagainst 76,000 last year, while stocks are 113,000 bales the Sherman law the American spinner would be act-ively in the market as the strongest competitor for American cotton. It is quite on the cards for considerable excitement in the Liverpool market in case the senate should act favorably on the repeal question Montgumery, Alabama, held a meeting last night of its representative men requesting that their senator should vote for repeal. We feel that the south has an opportunity to create a higher market for cotton, in opportunity to create a higher market for cotton, in our opinion, if they can induce such legislation at Washington by their representatives as will remove the great obstacle to a renewal of general business confidence. Liverpool took an unfavorable view of the bureau and closed only 1-5til lower than yesteroidy, and this in turn brought an advance here of 17618 points, which was sustained at the close. We believe Liverpool will be sufficiently higher tomorrow to bring about better markets on this side. The weekly interior movement promises to be small.

The railway and miscellaneous would market was somewhat irregular, but was in the main firmer than the share speculation.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Circular NEW YORK, October 11-The market today was jus to reverse of that yesterday. Liverpool evidently did to consider the bureau report as any encouragement not consider the bureau report as any encouragement to sell cotton, and the bears were disgusted to find in the cable advices no response worth mentioning to our sharp decline of yesterday. Everybody wanted to buy at the opening, which was at an advance of about 15 points, January selling on the call at 8.33, but when the buying orders had been executed there was a reaction of 5996 points, whereupon the bears made a bold raid, hammering January down to f.23. The weakness, however, was of short duration. The feeling improved and the whole of the loss was soon recovered. Later the demand became very active, and 8.36 was bid for the demand became very active, and 8.35 was bid for January. The close was firm at 8.35 bid. After the close the shorts were freely offering 8.36 for January with no sellers. The feeling now is, that with the existing crop outlook it is a rather risky business to sell cotton short. The main cloud upon the market is the delay of the senate in passing the silver repeal bill.

WEST END WILL ELECT MEMBERS

And Ask for Admittance on the Ground Floor as the Seventh Ward-What Will They Do?

Will it be a primary or a committee of one hundred that will present the munial ticket to the voters of Atlanta this

This question will be decided by the city executive committee tonight in room 104 the Kimball house:

After the publication in Tuesday's Constitution that the city executive committee bad never met and that that body had no organization, the committeemen began discussing the matter among themselves. The result of that discussion was a call for a meeting of the executive committee, the call being signed by members of the committee who had agreed to stand by the It was more in the nature of a request to their fellow members to meet with them than it was a call. And yet it might be designated as an official call because the members of the committee have as much right as any one else to convene that

The call read:

We, members of the city executive committee of Atlanta, respectfully ask the full committee to meet Thursday evening, the 12th instant, at 8 o'clock, in room 104 Kimbali

GEORGE R. DESAUSSURE,
C. D. HILL,
FULTON COLVILLE,
J. S. HOLLAND,
JACOB HAAS,
J. W. PHILIJIPS.

When this appeared and was read by the other members of the committee, it seemed to meet with a responsive chord. Before on yesterday the members of the committee had seen enough of their fellow committeemen to make it certain that the meet ing would take place tonight at the place

By the laws under which the committee exists it must elect its own chairman and fill any vacancy that there may be. It so happens that there are two vacancies, and both are in the fourth ward; one caused by removal from the city and one by death. Of course the first duty of the committee will be to fill these vacancies and for the two places several names have been sugested, among them being Mr. Samps Morris, Mr. John Stephens, Mr. Thomas L. Bishor, Mr. John J. Lynch and Major Hubner, After the election of the two members from the fourth ward, the committee will turn its attention to the election of a chairman. The chairman must not be a member of the committee, as it is now constituted, but must be chosen outside of the committee. During the day yesterday quite a number of gentlemen-were mentioned for this position. Hon. W. A. Hemphik's name was discussed upon the streets as one of those that would probably be presented for the chairmanship. Mr. H. H. Cabaniss, who has before been chairman of the committee, was also suggested; while that healthy new ward, to be known as the seventh, came forward with a claim for the place, and suggested the name of Mr. Al-

· Of course it is impossible to predict who will be chairman of the committee, and it is equally impossible to say what the committee will do.

In the ranks of the committee there is great diversity of opinion. Some of them want the selection of candidates left to a white primary, and of this class there are many. Others advocate the committee of one hundred and assert that it is the only way to secure a good clean ticket. There are those, too, on the executive committee, who favor the city convention plan.

The history of the general councils of the city of Atlanta as I know it," said one of the committee, "induces me to favor the committee of one hundred. Time and time again full tickets have been put out in this way and I have never known one of them to be the least bit sorry. In every instan these bodies have been composed of the best men, and the work they have done has mittee of one hundred was good in the past it certainly would be good this time."

"Primaries have always been successful in Atlanta," said an advocate of the primary. "No one can doubt the declaration that it is the fairest and squarest way of arriving at the choice of the people them-selves. By a primary no few men can dictate to the people the candidate for whom they should vote. The primary is broader and more satisfactory than any cauor convention that could possibly be

The people of the seventh ward will meet tonight and elect delegates to join the city executive committee in its work. Now that West End is practically a part of Atlanta, the new delegation will more than likely be given seats and be allowed to take part in the

The Executive Committee Prepares to The Teachers and Principals Take Action | The Famous Old Story Paralleled in on Mrs. M. P. Jones's Death.

SHE WAS A POPULAR TEACHER

And It Was a Sad Blow to the Students at the Night School to Hear of Her Death-The Funeral Today.

Few deaths cause such genuine and pro found sorrow as that caused by the sudden death of Mrs. M. P. Jones, who was a teacher in the night school.

Her death was extremely sudden and was altogether without warning. She was preparing to leave home to go to the school to her duties when the attack came on and she died in a very few minutes from apoplexy.

The news of her death was a sad blow to the young men whom she had been teach ing and by whom she had been devotedly loved. They were gathered in the schoolroom wating for her when she was stricken and were still waiting when the announce ment that she was dead was made. The students at the night school are young men who have had but meager advantages and they grew to love Mrs. Jones for the ness and assistance she always showd them.

The scene in the schoolroom when the news of her death was made known will never be forgotten. The young men wept and school was immediately adjourned A meeting of the principals of all the schools was called at Major Slaton's office yesterday. There was a full attendance and Miss Gussie Brenner was elected secretary. Resolutions of condolence and regret at the loss of so good and noble a voman were adopted and several addresses were made by the assembled principals on this line. Major Slaton, who was well acquainted with Mrs. Jones's rare worth as an educator, made a touching address in which he spoke glowingly of her work-and the great vacancy caused by her death. A committee of five was appointed draft suitable resolutions on the death of Mrs. Jones and these will be fead at the regular meeting of the general normal class the first Saturday in November. A mmittee of three was appointed to select suitable floral offerings for the funeral this afternoon. This committee consists of Mr. L. M. Landrum, Miss Brenner and Miss Mitchell. Hon. D. A. Beatie, president of the board of education, announced that every school in the city would close today at 12 o'clock to allow the teachers and others to attend the funeral. The night school was closed last night. The teachers are requested to meet in the Girls' High school building today at 2:30 o'clock to attend the funeral. President Beatie has called a meeting of the board to take appropriate action upon the sad death.

The funeral will occur from the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. M. L. Brittain, who has known Mrs. Jones for years, writes:

There died yesterday, at her home at 82 East Hunter street, one of the most faithful teachers that ever lived in the city of Atlanta. Her name rarely appeared in the columns of the daily newspapers, for sie was coatent to do her work to the best of her ability with none of the parade and notoriety which is so necessary to a valu and egotistic nature. To only a few of her acquamtances was there a full knowledge of the earnest, thorough work done by this noble woman. The writer knows something of it; he has realized it from experience and can never forget the generous wholesonied assistance rendered by her when in 1889, as a very young man, he was appointed principal of Grew street school and needed just such a wise and helpful counselor. As a teacher of young pupils it would be hard to find her equal; her superior, many will say, did not exist within the borders of our state. Many a parent has felt the good influence which her firm yet loving discipline has thrown around her pupils, but the full meaning of the work she accomplished in this direction for the good of Atlanta's people is only suspected and will never be known unless, perhaps, at the great Judgment. If every one she eyer benefited by her kindness or aided by her labors were to bring a rose to her grave, it would not contain the offerings. May she rest in peace; the world is better because of her life.

WILL MEET TONIGHT. A NOBLE WOMAN DEAD A GRIFFITH GAUNT:

TWO WIVES FROM THE SAME COUNTY

The Extraordinary Case of John Wilson, He Is Arrested by Wife No. 1 Last Night.

According to his own story John W. Wilson, foreman for the J. M. Moore Shoe Company, has been indulging in the luxury of two wives, under circumstances tha on record.

Not only did wife No. 1 know of the sec ond matrimonial alliance, but she even sur-rendered her children to the care of her uccessor. It took her over a year to make up her mind to call a halt.

On last February, Wilson and a woman, who passed as his wife, came to this city from Putnam county: He was an Englishman by birth, a skilled mechanic and shoenaker by trade and an intelligent-faced, kindly-mannered man of thirty-five or forty His wife was considerably his junior and evidently a country girl. She seemed to be a simple-minded, honest woman and great y attached to her husband. Her home she said was in Putnam county.

The couple had with them three partlygrown children whom Wilson explained were by a former marriage. He stated that he had procured a divorce from his first wife some years before at Chatta-nooga, and that his present marriage had taken place a short time before he came to Atlanta.

Wilson was a highly competent, sober and industrious man, and he had no difficulty in procuring work. He was employed at the Moore shoe factory and soon rose to the foremanship of the workroom. He and his wife, after moving several times finally settled in a cottage at No. 31 Means street, and all went merry as the proverbial marriage bell.

It has turned out, however, that all this time the good-looking mechanic carried an ugly secret in his breast. He had another wife who had called him husband for many years and lived no further away than Putnam county, the very locality in which was the home of his second spouse.

On Tuesday morning this peculiar state of affairs, which resembles closely the famous story of Griffith Gaunt, came to a climax in the arrival in Atlanta of a small, wiry, stern-faced woman of about fifty, who went to a boarding house on Simpson street. Later on she called at Judge Orr's court and told her story. She was Mrs. Wilson she said and wanted warrants for her brackets her husband and the woman claiming to be his wife Nearly twenty years ago, she said, she Nearly twenty years ago, she said, she and Wilson were married at her home in Putnam county. They lived together for years and three children were born to them, but they were not happy, and at length parted. No divorce was procured. Wilson went away and she remained at her own home. What followed she declined to state except that she had proof that he had married a woman named Bettie Moon and was living here in this city.

Upon this statement two warrants were issued, one for J. W. Wilson on a charge of bigamy and one for Bettle Moon for adultery. The constable happened to be busy, and they were not served until late vectorial. yesterday. yesterday.

It was just before "knocking off time" when Constable Boyles put in an appearance at the shoe factory and called for Wilson. As soon as the foreman saw the officer he turned pale. "I know what you want," he said quietly. "I'll make you no trouble."

He was taken toward the county jail, but hefer expirite.

Accordingly they went to the Simpson street boarding house and were ushered into the parlor. In a moment the little stern-faced woman walked in. She looked like a veritable Nemisis and Wilson quailed under her eyes.

both."
"Let us talk it over," he pleaded.
"I have nothing to say," she replied.
"You are guilty and I am going to see you punished."
"Have you no mercy?" he said.

The constable and his prisoner went out and Wilson was taken from there to the He was closely questioned on the way as to where his wife could be found, but he refused to give her address. The warrant was then sent to the police station and Officers Croker and Brown detailed to look the ground her.

Officers Croker and Brown detailed to look the woman up.

They located her a little after 6 o'clock and walked into the little house on Means street just as she was preparing the supper table. When the situation was explained to her she was thunderstruck and burst into hysterical tears. She begged the officers not to arrest her, but they had no option in the matter and took her on to the station house. Judge Orr was then telephoned and gave orders to hold her until 9 o'clock this morning when the case is set.

A Constitution reporter saw Mrs. Wil-A Constitution reporter saw Mrs. Wilson No. 2 at the station house. She was composed by that time and talked freely. "I always supposed Mr. Wilson was divorced," she said. "I met him first in Putnam county, where my parents live on a farm. We went to Florence, Ala., to be married, as my parents objected to him, and the marriage took place on the Sth of February last. From there we came divert to Atlanta and have been here ever

"Mr. Wilson has been a good husband to me," she continued. "He is a steady, hard-working man. Before we were married he showed me some papers and said it was his decree of divorce. I never saw the woman who claims to have married him, and had no idea that she was anywhere near here. I don't know what I will do, but if he gets out I will certainly stick, to him."

Wilson was seen later on at the jail. He was seated with his forehead in his palms, the picture of deep dejection.

"My God! My! God!" he exclaimed.

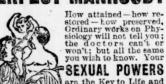

What shall I do? Yes, it is true—all true. I will not lie about it. She is my wife and in the eyes of the law I suppose I am guilty.

"I will tell you the story. I was born in Birmingham. England, and came to this country when I was an apprentice boy. When I went to Putnam county I was only seventeen years old, totally ignorant of the world and full of confidence in everybody. I fell in love with a woman ten years older than myself. She fascinated the completely and trapped me into marrying her. From the moment I made that mistake my life has been a hell. She had the temper, of a savage and in her outbursts was simply beside herself.

About a year ago she wrote me that if I would take the children she had an opportunity to marry. I sent for them. This was five years after our separation. Nothing was said about a divorce and I supposed that she had married and would never dare to trouble me if I did likewise. "A little while afterward I met my present wife and we were married. FOR BRUNSWICK.

The Fair and Its Magnificent

GOVERNOR NORTHEN APPROVES IT.

This Progressive Dry Goods House Will Give Ten Per Cent of Its Sales on Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to the Brunswick Sufferers.

The people of Atlanta are stirred up about the Brunswick sufferers. Yesterday The Fair made a proposition to Governor Northen to give 10 per cent of the proceeds of a three days' sale next week to these grief-stricken people. Here is what the governor says:

"Messrs. S. Thanhouser & Son, City: Your letter informing me that you will tender 10 per cent of all your sales of next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the benefit of the suffering at Brunswick has

"I beg to express to you my appreciation f your prompt and liberal action in the worthy cause.

"The amount forwarded to me will be promptly transmitted to Mayor Lamb.

"Thanking you for your letter and your interest, I am truly, etc..

The foregoing is indicative of the liberal policy of one of our leading houses. This action on the part of The Fair is true charity, and we cannot too highly commend the spirit which prompts it. Each year The Fair holds an extraordinary discount sale during October, in com-memoration of their opening. It is their anniversary sale, and they turn the tide of their heavy sales into the lap of suffering

The universal verdict of the traveling public is that the Pullman safety vestibuled trains that run daily, Sundays included, via the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton and Monon route, between Chicago, Indianapo-lis and Cincinnati, are without doubt "the finest on earth." The trains were specially finest on earth. The trains were specially built by Pullman for this service and embraced every improvement. While the trains with their magnificent coaches, luxurious smoking cars, superb sleepers, observation chair cars compartment sleeping cars and unexcelled tining car service, afford "all the comforts of home," the paramount inducement offered by this train service is that danger has been reduced to a minimum. There can be no danger from fire since the trains are entirely heated by steam and lighted by electricity and the Pintsch gas system. This vestibule system is so constructed as to prevent oscillating motion of the cars by the use of vertical buffers being held in frictional contact with each other under the enormous pressure of 15,000 pounds, which renders telescoping an impossibility.

WHY HE LEFT LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

He Was Born and Raised in Atlanta, and Formerly Dressed Windows in This City.

The Louisville Courier-Journal contains the story of the arrest of Mr. Edward J. Powell. The young man was once a resident of

The young man was once a resident of Atlanta, and is still remembered here.

The Courier-Journal says:
Edward J. Powell, a well-dressed youngman, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Gorley and Fow, charged with being a fugitive from justice. It is alleged that he is wanted in Little Rock, Ark, for grand larceny. For some time Powell has been employed as a window dresser at Strauss's dry goods store. goods store.

To a Courier-Journal reporter last night

Powell said he got in trouble with a girl and had to run away from Little Rock to escape arrest. Until a few months ago he said he was employed in the dry goods store of Gus Blass & Co., in Little Rock, as a window dresser. It was then that he met a pretty young woman. Powell says he caused the downfall of this young woman. A few months ago her confiding Powell says, could no longer be concealed from the rembers of her family, who, learning and the facts, set about to prosecute Powell, thus causing him to leave that city.

Among the many things, which the detec Among the many things, which the detectives say, Powell bought on credit was a $100 bleycle. He had paid $60 on this wheel when he left Little Rock. The wheel was purchased from Tucker & French, of that city. They swore out a warrant for his arrest on the charge of grand larceny. Tucker & French learned that Powell had come to this city, and notified Chief of Detectives Owens, who had him arrested. He was dressing the windows when arrested. Major Owens said yesterday that the chief of police of Little Rock had written him that Powell had made many large bills in Little Rock, which he had left tupaid.

had made many large bills in Little Rock, which he had left uppaid.

Powell was seen in his cell last night by a Courier-Journal reporter. "I was born and raised in Atlanta, Ga.," said he, "and my people are well-to-do there. I admit that I owe $40 on the bicycle, but I don't call that stealing. I would have paid the bill if it had not become necessary for me to leave Little Rock suddenly."

Powell tried to get out on bond yesterday, but was not able to do so.

MR. C. K. MADDOX. Writes a Card in Relation to Mr. Dan Hall's Part in the Home Manufacture Movement.
Editor Constitution: In a recent column in you paper I was quoted as speaking of Mr. Hall. If any one construes what I said to be in any way unfavorable to him, I de-sire to correct the impression. I know him well and can, with pleasure, certify to his well and can, with pleasure, certify to his energy and ability as a good business man. His efforts in behalf of the manufacturers of Atlanta have been untiring and marked by distinguished ability. Nobody has contributed more than he to bring he me-made products to the attention of our own citizens and increase their consumption in our midst. Our manufacturers tell me this home movement has brought them thousands and thousands of dolars, which otherwise would have been spent abroad. Mr. Hall initiated, this movement and every citizen wishing for the weifarre of Atlanta should be grateful to him. He is now engaged in the smoking tobacco business and every consumer in Atlanta should patronize his enterprise, and the jobbers should aid him in building up another home institution; and I recommend him to the favorable consideration and good will of all. Respectfully.

C. K. MADDOX.

GRAND REPUBLIC CIGARROS.

Major F. V. Simmonds Now in the City in the Interest of these Famous Goods.

People in the city yesterday and the day reope in the city yesterday and the day before noticed a gentleman of handsome physique, gaily dressed, perambulating the streets distributing circulars. Upon these circulars was an announcement that W. A. Russell, Atlanta's great tobacconist, A. Russen, Atlanta's great tobaccoms, had just received a large shipment of the Grand Republic Cigarros.

Of course, it is useless to say anything about these goods. They are known in every nook and corner of the United States. In fact, they have been sold throughout the initial world.

In fact, they have been sold throughout the civilized world, and today they are regarded by many connoisseurs without an equal.

Major F. V. Simmonds, who has just returned from a six months trip to Europe, whose has how here in the interest of his where he has been in the interest of his house, is now in Atlanta. He says:
I have traveled all over the United States and have placed goods everywhere, and up to this date and hour I have never and up to this date and hour I have never found anyone who has tried the Grand Republic Cigarros but who were loud in their praises. I believe these goods are the best offered the public. The fact that they have had a continuous round for a number of years and that each year they become more popular, is significant. It means that the people find in these cigarros just that character of goods they want." Major Simmonds will be here for several days, and it is quite likely that after he leaves there will have been more Grand Republic Cigarros sold in this city than ever in its history. He is a genial, affalble gentleman, and is said to be the fluest cigar salesman in this country.

An Undisputed Test of Merit. A medicine that has been a household remedy for over fifty years and used in that time by more than 150,000,000 persons must have great merit. Such a medicine is found in Brandreth's Pills. This fact demonstrates the value of these pills bet ter than any statement of the proprietors. It will be observed that the dose required to cure is small. One or two pills taken every night for ten or twenty days will cure dyspepsia, costiveness, rheumatism, liver complaint, biliousness, or any disease aris-ing from an impure state of the blood. Brandreth's Pills are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless and safe to take at any

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleas-ant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all drug-gists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
